New Titles Catalogue

Spring/Summer 2023

Welcome

Welcome to our Spring/Summer 2023 catalogue.

This season we have lots of incredible new titles from Bristol University Press and Policy Press to share with you, including the launch of our new series What Is It For? The first three books in the series are on pages 7-8

What is War For?

What is Cybersecurity For?

What is Philanthropy For?

Also out this season is Uncomfortably Off: Why The Top 10% of Earners Should Care about Inequality (page 9) which focuses on those who earn between 1% and 10% and why it's in everyone's interest that inequality is reduced.

Finally, we are delighted to publish 50 Dark Destinations (page 10) which looks at travel destinations across six continents where harms are constantly perpetuated – a go-to guide for anyone interested in crime and tourism!

We also have a large selection of textbooks and research monographs out this season – as well as more unmissable issues in our open access Global Social Challenges Journal (pages 5 and 6). Do grab a coffee and have a browse through the following pages.

BRISTOL UNIVERSITY PRESS DIGITAL

Peer-reviewed books and journals tackling global social challenges.

This new platform offers you instant access to Bristol University Press and Policy Press digital content: ebooks, journal articles and collections from across the social sciences, including the new, non-profit, Open Access (OA) Global Social Challenges Journal.

Bristol University Press Digital, launched in Spring 2022, has been developed as part of our mission to publish research that tackles the biggest problems facing the world today. The platform provides users with e-collections in the social sciences, uniquely curated and themed around the global social challenges and the UN's Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), enabling scholarly communities and practitioners with crucial insights to effect positive change in the world.

Benefits for academics, researchers and libraries include:

- 1,500+ books, 18 journals and 90 OA titles, all tagged and searchable by global social challenges;
- Access to our innovative new OA Global Social Challenges Journal, which breaks down boundaries to participation in, and access to, truly global social science research;
- An innovative tagging system, saving libraries time and resource in collating content and maintaining collection relevance to rapidly evolving themes;
- Maximum discoverability of our authors' work across books and journals;
- An intuitive and easy-to-use solution for both readers and librarians;
- Key industry standards for accessibility (WAGC 2.0) and reporting (COUNTER-compliant statistics).

Bristol University Press Digital is revolutionising the way scholarly communities search, experience and share content by connecting you with research that addresses the global social challenges.

Global Social Challenges Journal

NON-PROFIT, OPEN ACCESS
PUBLISHING FOR CHANGE

NOW ONLINE

Bristol University Press is delighted to announce our new fully Open Access journal.

"I'm proud to see Bristol University Press launching this important new journal, which promises to address the most urgent complexities of global social challenges by drawing together accessible international scholarship across the disciplines to inform policy and practice."

PROFESSOR JUDITH SQUIRES, DEPUTY VICE-CHANCELLOR AND PROVOST, UNIVERSITY OF BRISTOL

How can we reimagine society in an era of climate change, pandemic, hunger, poverty, questions of racial, ethnic and gender justice and other pressing global societal challenges? Significant threats and dangers lie ahead of us, but so do opportunities, as new ways of being, thinking and doing emerge. This new, fully Open Access journal aims to facilitate thinking about these positive new trajectories and to become the journal of choice to address the complexities of global social challenges across disciplines and fields.

It is the first such journal to be based in the social sciences while also engaging with research from humanities, arts and STEM. Including marginalised, minority and indigenous world views, the journal will be an important home for research that contributes to the creation of alternative futures that acknowledge past injustices and are socially and environmentally just and sustaining.

Editor: George Miller

What Is War For?

Jack McDonald, King's College London

"War is a human universal. It is also fractal - it is always the same and always different. And it is still very much alive as Jack McDonald explains in this compelling and thought-provoking book."

CHRISTOPHER COKER, LSE IDEAS

"An excellent introduction especially with its discussion of the Law of Armed Conflict, so often neglected."

BEATRICE HEUSER, UNIVERSITY OF GLASGOW

When states wage war on their neighbours while denying they are doing so, what chance do we have to regulate war, and how will we ever achieve a more peaceful world?

This book examines how changes to social rules – such as interpretations of international law – reshape how states explain their military actions, and changes to technology and society transform the activities that constitute contemporary warfare.

Analysing the role that war serves in global politics, it outlines the multiple ways that war affects the contemporary world, from international relations to our day-to-day lives.

Focusing on two competing visions of war – that war can and should be eliminated, and that war is a permanent problem to be managed – it takes the second path as a necessary step towards the first, in the maybe vain hope that it is ever achievable.

What Is Cybersecurity For?

Tim Stevens, King's College London

"A nuanced, and yet accessible introduction to the fascinating world of cybersecurity."

ANDRÉ BARRINHA, UNIVERSITY OF BATH

How will protecting our digital infrastructure shape our future? Cybersecurity is one of the key practical and political challenges of our time. This book shows that the political dimension is as important as the technological one.

It accessibly explains the complexities of global information systems, the challenges of providing security to users, societies, states and the international system, and the multitude of competing players and ambitions in this arena. Making the case for understanding it as a crucial political project, it tackles the ultimate question: how can we do it better?

What Is Philanthropy For?

Rhodri Davies, Philanthropy Matters

"An unbiased analysis of the various approaches our sector engages in – equal parts historic treatise and futurism think-piece, which tries to answer the salient question: how can we improve philanthropy?"

EDGAR VILLANUEVA, ACTIVIST, AUTHOR AND FOUNDER/PRINCIPAL OF DECOLONIZING WEALTH PROJECT AND LIBERATED CAPITAL

Does charitable giving still matter but need to change? Philanthropy, the use of private assets for public good, has been much criticised in recent years. The COVID-19 pandemic has amplified many of these criticisms, leading some to conclude that philanthropy needs to be fundamentally reshaped.

Rhodri Davies explains why it's important to ask what philanthropy is for because it has for centuries played a major role in shaping our world. Considering the alternatives, including charity, justice, taxation, the state, democracy and the market, he examines the pressing questions that philanthropy must tackle if it is to be equal to the challenges of the 21st century.

Uncomfortably Off

Why the Top 10% of Earners Should Care about Inequality

Marcos González Hernando, Universidad Diego Portales and Gerry Mitchell, social policy researcher

Media attention is often focused on the very richest, the 1%, and their capacity to influence politics and shape society. But they are not the only ones who drive politics, the public conversation and much of the private sector. The focus of this book is on the larger group between the 1% and the 10%. These are the managers and professionals of our media, business, the third sector, political parties and academia and are just as influential.

However, many would not recognise themselves as high earners at all. In fact, earning around £60,000 a year in Britain places you in the top 10% of income earners. Maybe you're surprised you fall into this category, or are not as far off as you thought.

But despite this group's relative advantage and comfort, these high earners don't feel politically empowered. They worry about their income and are anxious about the future. Most of them are more likely to move down the income ladder than up it.

Drawing attention to this powerful section of society, this book explains why, even if you are relatively near the top, it is in your interest that inequality is reduced and you can make that happen.

50 Dark Destinations

Crime and Contemporary Tourism

Edited by Adam Lynes, Craig Kelly and James Treadwell,
Birmingham City University

“A fascinating travelogue of trouble. The tourist gaze that animates the book is particularly chilling, revealing the global span of crime – and the insatiable global appetite for crime’s ghostly residues.”

JEFF FERRELL, AUTHOR OF DRIFT: ILLICIT MOBILITY AND UNCERTAIN KNOWLEDGE

“Fun and scholarly, engaging and academic, interesting and intellectual, and should be widely read by anyone interested in violence, trauma, memory, memorialisation, war, museums and history. The subject matter is gruesome and chilling but at the same time accessible and illuminating.”

KEVIN WALBY, UNIVERSITY OF WINNIPEG

From the Alcatraz East Crime Museum and Jack the Ripper guided tours to Phnom Pehn Killing Fields, ‘dark tourism’ is now a multi-million-pound global industry. Even in the most pleasant tourist destinations, underlying harms are constantly perpetuated, affecting both consumers and those who work or live around such tourist hotspots. Highlighting 50 travel destinations across six continents, expert criminologists, psychologists and historians explore the past and contemporary issues which we often disregard during our everyday leisure.

This captivating book is the ‘go-to’ guide for anyone interested in crime and deviance-related tourism. Accessible and digestible, it exposes a worrying trend in contemporary consumer culture, in which many of us partake.

When This Is Over

Reflections on an Unequal Pandemic

Edited by Amy Cortvriend, University of Northampton,
Lucy Easthope, University of Durham and University of Bath,
Jenny Edkins, Aberystwyth University and Kandida Purnell,
American International University in London

"A timely meditation on crisis, response, resilience and death in the 21st century. A must read."

TONI HAASTRUP, UNIVERSITY OF STIRLING

"Hugely illuminating and harrowing, laying bare how loss, burden, sacrifice and grief were mediated by existing systemic inequalities and discrimination."

ANDREAS PAPAMICHAIL, QUEEN MARY UNIVERSITY OF LONDON

The COVID-19 pandemic had a profound and persistent impact. A tragic loss of life, change to established patterns of life and social inequalities laid bare. It brought out the good in many and the worst in others and raised questions around what is truly important in our lives.

In this book, academics, activists and artists come together to remember and to reflect on the pandemic. What lessons should we learn? And how can things be different when this is over?

Sensitive to inequalities of gender, race and class, it highlights the experience of marginalised and minority groups and the unjust and uneven spread of violence, deprivation and death. It combines academic analysis with personal testimonies, poetry and images from contributors including Sue Black, Led By Donkeys, Lucy Easthope, Lara-Rose Iredale, Michael Rosen and Gary Younge.

Taken together, this truly inclusive commemorative overview honours the experience of a global disaster lived up close and suggests the steps needed to ensure we do better next time.

Psychology at the Heart of Social Change

Developing a Progressive Vision for Society

Mick Cooper, University of Roehampton

"Heartening, bold and inspiring."

SUSIE ORBACH, PSYCHOTHERAPIST AND AUTHOR

To create a world in which people thrive, we need to know what thriving is. This book shows why we need, and can create, a progressive politics that is profoundly informed by insights from the psychotherapeutic and psychological domain, moving us from a politics of blame to a politics of understanding.

In this vision of the world – surrounded by a culture of radical acceptance – all individuals can live fulfilling lives. We need progressive political forces to develop greater understandings of psychological needs and processes; and to work with others in a spirit of collaboration, dialogue and respect.

White Minds

Everyday Performance, Violence and Resistance

Guilaine Kinouani, Race Relations

It is widely understood that race is a social fact with profound implications for life chances, group identity, collective representation and for the social order. 'Whiteness', the source of race-based inequality and injustice is perpetuated through power, violence and an array of complex processes which help protect the status quo.

Guilaine Kinouani argues that whiteness is a historically and socially located psychological phenomenon. She examines how the psychological and psychic factors involved in the reproduction of whiteness intersect with macro structures, shedding light on everyday race dynamics, race inequality and racial violence of interest to all who seek to understand the impact of 'whiteness' so they can be more effective anti-racists.

Men Stepping Forward

The Practices of Inclusive Leaders

Elisabeth Kelan, University of Essex

How do men interested in gender equality become ‘change makers’ and lead their organisation towards inclusion? Directly addressing men, this innovative book reveals how they can be centrally involved in creating gender-inclusive cultures in their organisations. Using cutting-edge research, it suggests practical actions for men as leaders and managers to implement in order to make real changes. Ideal for the time-poor professional, it is essential reading for all men who want to make a difference but don’t know where to start.

Recasting Labour's Power

Work and Inequality in the Shadow of the Digital Age

Edward Webster, University of the Witwatersrand

Much of the debate on the future of work has focused on responses to technological trends in the Global North, with little evidence on how these trends are impacting on work and workers in the Global South.

Drawing on a rich selection of ethnographic studies of precarious work in Africa, this innovative book discusses how globalisation and digitalisation are drivers for structural change and examines their implications for labour.

Bringing together global labour studies and inequality studies, it explores the role of digital technology in new business models, and ways in which digitalisation can be harnessed for counter mobilisation by the new worker.

How to Build a Stock Exchange

The Past, Present and Future of Finance

Philip Roscoe, University of St Andrews

Why is finance so important? How do stock markets work and what do they really do? Roscoe mingles historical and technical detail with humorous anecdotes and lively portraits of market participants.

He offers a cautionary tale about the drive of financial markets towards expropriation, capture and exclusion and includes contemporary concerns over inequality, climate emergency and (de)colonialism. He concludes by wondering, in the market's own angst-filled voice, what the future for finance might be, and how we might get there.

The Ethics of Hacking

Ross W. Bellaby, University of Sheffield

"Illuminating and plausible... rooted in impressive empirical research and drawing on a range of philosophical sources. A must-read."

CÉCILE FABRE, UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

Political hackers, like the infamous Anonymous collective, have demonstrated their willingness to use political violence to further their agendas. However, many of their causes are intuitively good things to fight for.

This book argues that when the state fails to protect people, hackers can intervene, and evaluates the hacking based on the political or social circumstances. It offers a unique contribution to conceptualising hacking as a contemporary political activity.

It's Not Where You Live, It's How You Live

Class and Gender Struggles in a Dublin Estate

John Bissett, community worker, activist and writer

"This brilliant, vividly written and compelling book, drawing on rich vibrant accounts of life on a Dublin housing estate, should be compulsory reading for everyone concerned about growing social class inequalities."

DIANE REAY, UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE

This ground-breaking and compelling book takes us deep into the world of a public housing estate in Dublin, showing in fine detail the life struggles of those who live there. The book puts the emphasis on class and gender processes, revealing them to be the crucial dynamics in the lives of public housing residents. Combining long-term research into residents' lived experience with critical realist theory, it provides a completely fresh perspective on public housing in Ireland and arguably, beyond.

The Battle for Britain

Crises, Culture Wars and COVID-19

John Clarke, The Open University

This book addresses the social, political and economic turbulence in which the UK is embroiled, exploring proliferating crises and conflicts, from the multiplying varieties of social dissent through the stagnation of rentier capitalism to the looming climate catastrophe.

Examining arguments about Brexit, class and 'race', and the changing character of the state, the book traces the entangled dynamics of time and space that have shaped the current conjuncture. Questioning whether increasingly anti-democratic and authoritarian strategies can provide a resolution to these troubles, it explores how the accumulating crises and conflicts have produced a deepening 'crisis of authority' that forms the terrain of the 'Battle for Britain'.

Defund the Police

An International Insurrection

Chris Cunneen, University of Technology Sydney

The police are viewed as guardians of public safety and enforcers of the law. How accurate is this? Given endemic police violence which often aimed at racialised and minoritised groups and the failure of many attempts at reform, attention has turned to community-generated models of support. These include defunding the police and instead funding alternatives to criminalisation and incarceration.

This book is the first comprehensive overview of police divestment, using international examples and case studies to reimagine community safety beyond policing and imprisonment. Showcasing a range of practical examples, this topical book will be relevant for academics, policy makers, activists and all those interested in the Black Lives Matter movement, protest movements and the renewed interest in policing and abolitionism more generally

Vicarious Warfare

American Strategy and the Illusion of War on the Cheap

Thomas Waldman, Loughborough University

"For anyone concerned with the human cost of war (as we all should be), Waldman offers a key to unlocking the 'alchemy' of America's fighting strategy. This richly researched and thoughtful book finally gives us words to describe the troubling path we're on. Vicarious war indeed."

SARAH HOLEWINSKI, WASHINGTON DIRECTOR, HUMAN RIGHTS WATCH

America has been at war for most of the 20th and 21st centuries and during that time has progressively moved towards a vicarious form of warfare, where key tasks are delegated to proxies, the military's exposure to danger is limited, and special forces and covert instruments are on the increase. Important strategic decisions are taken with minimal scrutiny or public engagement.

Nicola Ingram, Manchester Metropolitan University, Jessie Abrahams, University of Surrey, Ann-Marie Bathmaker, University of Birmingham, Laura Bentley and Harriet Bradley, University of the West of England, Tony Hoare, University of Bristol, Vanda Papafilippou and Richard Waller, University of the West of England

“A must read for anyone interested in grasping how the experience of higher education has altered. It offers a unique insight into the process of generational change and the transformation of the role of the academic.”

FRANK FUREDI, UNIVERSITY OF KENT

This book traces the transition to the graduate labour market of a cohort of middle-class and working-class young people who were tracked through seven years of their undergraduate and post-graduation lives. Using personal stories and voices, the book provides fascinating insights into the group’s experience of graduate employment and how their life-course transitions are shaped by their social backgrounds and education.

All We Want is the Earth

Land, Labour and Movements
Beyond Environmentalism

Patrick Bresnihan, Maynooth University and Naomi Millner, University of Bristol

This book traces a counter-history of modern environmentalism from the 1960s to the present day. It focuses on claims concerning land, labour and social reproduction arising at important moments in the history of environmentalism made by feminist, anti-colonial, Indigenous, workers’ and agrarian movements. Many of these movements did not consider themselves ‘environmental’, and yet they offer vital ways forward in the face of escalating ecological damage and social injustice.

Health in a Post-COVID World

Lessons from the Crisis of Western Liberalism

Sebastian Taylor, Royal College of Paediatrics

A book for now, a wake-up call to recognise that safeguarding human health by tackling its root determinants, is as crucial as planetary health for a sustainable future"

NEENA MODI, IMPERIAL COLLEGE LONDON

What part do the values of growth and prosperity, freedom and justice, security and democracy play in social policy and human welfare? How can we judge the policies offered to us as the recipe for progress?

At a time of global 'permacrisis', Sebastian Taylor applies his extensive frontline experience working with health systems and healthcare in the Global North and South to assess the concrete impact of contemporary liberal values on our welfare, development and environmental survival.

Drawing on research from around the world, he uses health as an objective metric to assess how effective these policies are for individuals and society as a whole.

Research and Evaluation for Busy Students and Practitioners

3rd Edition

Helen Kara, We Research It Ltd

"This latest edition of Helen Kara's book will further embed its reputation as a go-to book in the research and evaluation field. In a direct and accessible style, Kara provides guidance for early career and practitioner researchers, and inspiration for the more experienced."

ROSALIND EDWARDS, UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHAMPTON

Research doesn't exist in a bubble but co-exists with a multitude of other tasks and commitments, yet there is more need for people to save time than ever before.

Brilliantly attuned to the demands placed on researchers, this book considers how students, academics and professionals alike can save time and stress without compromising the quality of their research or its outcomes. This third edition:

- is fully revised with new chapters on research and evaluation ethics, creative methods of collecting data and how research can make a positive difference;
- includes illustrative case studies throughout the book and each chapter concludes with exercises, discussion questions and a debate topic;
- is accompanied by a fully updated companion website.

This supportive book is designed for any student or practitioner who wants to know how to do research on top of their main job and still have a life.

NEW TEXTBOOK

Child Development and the Brain Second Edition

From Embryo to Adolescence

Rob Abbott, The Open University and Esther Burkitt, University of Chichester

This bestselling textbook provides social science students with an accessible introduction to neuroscience and the implications for our understandings of child development, considering the links between brain development and social and cultural issues.

Now covering the 0-18+ age range, the new edition critically analyses the relationship between children and young people's thoughts, behaviours and feelings and the ways in which their developing brains are structured. It includes a new section on emotional development in adolescence, considering the impact of drugs and alcohol on the brain and the role of brain changes in driving risky behaviours.

Assuming no prior knowledge of the subject, the text connects the latest scientific knowledge to the practice of understanding and working with children. Incorporating the latest research and debate throughout, the book offers students and CYP practitioners:

- case studies showing how brain science is changing practice;
- a companion website including self-test questions;
- end-of-chapter summaries, further reading and questions to test knowledge;
- a glossary of neuroscientific terms.

Diverse Voices in Public Law

Se-shauna Wheatle and Elizabeth A. O'Loughlin, Durham University

Taking a unique and critical approach to the study of Public Law, this book explores the main topics in UK Public Law from a range of underexplored perspectives and amplifies the voices of scholars who are underrepresented in the field. As such, it represents a much-needed complement to traditional textbooks in Public Law.

Including insights from a diverse list of contributors, the book:

- enriches students' understanding of the dynamics that emerge within Public Law;
- highlights the impact of historical and societal inequities on Public Law norms;
- demonstrates the ways in which those norms may impact minorities and perpetuate inequalities.

With most chapters written by underrepresented or minoritised persons in the field, this text offers students a critical, rich and insightful approach to Public Law.

Global Perspectives on Philanthropy and Public Good

When disaster strikes, our instinctive response is to make things better, not only as individuals but also as groups, organisations, communities and major institutions within society.

This book is a step toward curating our existing knowledge in the emerging field of ‘disaster philanthropy’ and to building a robust base for future research, practice and public policy.

The authors highlight unknowns and ambiguities, extensions and unexplored spaces, and challenges and paradoxes. Above all, they recognise that philanthropic responses to disasters are complex, conditional and subject to change.

Policy-Making as Designing

The Added Value of Design Thinking for Public Administration and Public Policy

Edited by Arwin van Buuren, Erasmus University Rotterdam, Jenny M. Lewis, University of Melbourne and B. Guy Peters, University of Pittsburgh

First published as a special issue of Policy & Politics, this book presents original critical reflections on the value of design approaches and how they relate to the classical idea of public administration as a design science. Contributors consider the potential, challenges and applications of design approaches and distinguish between three methods currently characterising the discipline: design as optimisation, design as exploration and design as co-creation.

Developing the dialogue around public administration as a design science, this collection explores how a more ‘designerly’ way of thinking can improve public administration and public policy.

The Child-Parent Caregiving Relationship in Later Life

Psychosocial Experiences

Bethany Morgan Brett, psychodynamic psychotherapist and freelance academic

This book presents a poignant and sensitive account of the challenges faced by adult children when making difficult decisions about care for and with their ageing parents in later life.

It offers new insights into the practical, emotional and physical effects that witnessing the ageing and death of parents has on those in late midlife, and how these relationships are negotiated during this phase of the life course.

Social Care in the UK's Four Nations

Between Two Paradigms

Edited by Catherine Needham and Patrick Hall, University of Birmingham

The devolution of social care policy has led to key differences emerging between the UK's four care systems. This book presents research on the perspectives of social care policy makers on the systems in which they operate.

It raises questions about the role of 'standardisation' and 'differentiation' in social care, concluding that when given equal capacity to reform their respective systems, the regimes in each nation may take radically different shapes.

Contextual Safeguarding

The Next Chapter

Edited by Carlene Firmin and Jenny Lloyd, Durham University

The Contextual Safeguarding approach has transformed how policy makers, social care leaders, practitioners and researchers understand harm that happens to young people in their communities and what is required to respond. Since 2015 it has been tested across the UK and internationally. This book shares stories from child sexual exploitation, child criminal exploitation and peer violence about what has been learnt on this journey. For anyone interested in how we safeguard young people beyond their front doors, this book shows how much we have achieved and raises big questions about what more we need to do to ensure young people are safe – whatever the context.

International Theory at the Margins

Neglected Essays, Recurring Themes

Nicholas Greenwood Onuf, Florida International University

"Each story in this volume is a little gem."

ANNA LEANDER, GENEVA GRADUATE INSTITUTE

This book brings together 13 of Nicholas Onuf's previously published yet rarely cited essays. They address topics that Onuf has puzzled over for decades, including the problem of materiality in social construction, epochal change in the modern world, and the power of language.

Building on the work of giants, from Aristotle and Cicero, Hume and Kant, to Derrida and Foucault, and drawing on diverse contemporary theorists, including Seyla Benhabib, James Der Derian, Johan Galtung, Morton Kaplan, Joseph Nye, James Rosenau, Elaine Scarry and Kenneth Waltz, the book ranges over the margins of the field and settles on issues that have never been put to rest.

Whistleblowing and Retaliation in the United Nations

Edited by Caroline Hunt-Matthes, Webster University and Alexis Bushnell, NUI, Ireland

This illuminating book combines first-hand accounts of United Nations whistleblowers with academic reflections of their experiences. It argues that it is vital for international organisations (IOs) such as the UN, which was created for the common good, to critically evaluate the mechanisms complicit in silencing these voices, ultimately undermining its purpose and creating unnecessary risk for the UN.

The Politics of Negative Emotions

Edited by Dan Degerman, University of Bristol

Negative emotions, including anger, fear and shame, have been at the heart of recent political events, such as the protests against COVID-19 restrictions. These negative emotions can be politically destructive, leading people to act rashly without due concern for democratic principles. However, they can also accurately signal wrongdoing and motivate acts to redress the situation, as displayed in the Black Lives Matter and climate change movements.

This volume brings together perspectives from political science and philosophy to shed new light on the political faces of negative emotions. Engaging with real-world political events from Europe, the US and Africa, contributors critically evaluate much-discussed emotions, such as anger and fear, but also less prominent ones, such as frustration and discomfort.

Migration, Crisis and Temporality at the Zimbabwe-South Africa Border

Governing Immobilities

Kudakwashe Vanyoro, University of the Witwatersrand

Vanyoro's insightful book explores the governance of immobilities through the experiences of Zimbabwean migrants in the South African border town of Musina after the 2008 economic crisis. It assesses the intertwining roles of humanitarian actors and government bodies in the bureaucratic management of immobile people and places, and the importance of temporality in understanding African migration, states and borders.

Race, Class, Parenting and Children's Leisure

Children's Leisurescapes and Parenting Cultures in Middle-Class British Indian Families

Utsa Mukherjee, Brunel University

School-age children's everyday lives are changing as they are immersed in digital leisure and organised activities. However, our current understandings of these transitions are race-blind and largely based on the experiences of white middle-class parents.

Presenting an unprecedented study of middle-class British Indian families, this is an intervention to existing debates of the theorisation of children's leisure.

Racial Diversity in Contemporary France

The Case of Colorblindness

Marie des Neiges Léonard, University of South Alabama

"...a refreshing sociological analysis."

CASEY M. MAUGH FUNDERBURK, UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI

This unique work reveals how the denial of race as a social category maintains and reproduces systematic racism in contemporary France. From the 2005 riots to the terrorist attack against satirical magazine Charlie Hebdo and the policies regarding the Islamic veil, Léonard offers an in-depth analysis of contentious issues in society, illuminating how colour-blind racism is at the centre of social inequality today.

Menopause and the Workplace

Theorising Transitions,
Responsibilities and Interventions

Vanessa Beck, University of Bristol and
Jo Brewis, The Open University

The symptoms of menopause transitions have profound implications for work and are, in turn, affected by work. Despite this, the topic is rarely discussed in management and organisation studies.

Providing an overview of existing knowledge in the field of menopause in the workplace, this collection retheorises the management of human resources as it relates to the connections between gender, age and the body in the workplace environment with an intersectional analysis.

Offering theoretical frameworks from experts as well as possible practical approaches that can be implemented in workplaces to support women transitioning through menopause, this is a go-to reference for academics and policy makers working in the field.

Contemporary Issues in Science Communication

Race and Socio-cultural Inclusion in Science Communication

Innovation, Decolonisation and Transformation

Edited by Elizabeth Rasekoala, African Gong

Conversations around diversity, equity and inclusion in science communication are in danger of generating much concern without effecting change and systematic transformations. This radical volume puts the spotlight on the marginalised voices of so-called 'racialised minorities', and those from Global South regions, and in doing so, it interrogates the global footprint of the science communication enterprise. Moving beyond tokenistic and extractive approaches, this book creates a space for academics and practitioners to challenge issues around race and sociocultural inclusion, providing mutual learning, paradigm-shifting perspectives and innovative ways forward for the science communication advancement agenda.

The War on Dirty Money

Nicholas Gilmour, consultant and Tristram Hicks, international criminal justice advisor

“Bang on the (dirty) money. This book is for anyone that wants to understand the problem, why we’re failing and what can be done about it.”

DAVID LEWIS, FINANCIAL ACTION TASK FORCE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY 2015–2022

Billions of dollars are wasted each year trying to prevent ‘dirty money’ entering a financial system that is already awash with it. The authors challenge the global approach, arguing that complacency, self-interest and misunderstanding have now created long-standing absurdities.

International and government policy makers inadvertently facilitate tax evasion, corruption, environmental and organised crime by separating crime from its root cause. The handful of crime-fighters that do exist are starved of resources while an army of compliance box-tickers are prevented from truly helping. The authors provide a toolbox of evidence-based solutions to help the front line tackle financial crime.

New Horizons in Criminology

Series Editors: Andrew Millie, Edge Hill University

Island Criminology

John Scott, Queensland University of Technology and Zoe Staines, The University of Queensland

"Insightful, analytical and compassionate...a must-read on an under-researched topic. A story that needs to be told and heard."

LARISSA BEHRENDT, UNIVERSITY OF TECHNOLOGY SYDNEY

Ten percent of the world's population lives on islands, but until now the place and space characteristics of islands in criminological theory have not been deeply considered. This book addresses issues of how, and by whom, crime is defined in island settings, and which crimes are policed and visible, informed by the distinctive social structures of their communities.

New Horizons in Criminology

Visual Criminology

Bill McClanahan, Eastern Kentucky University

"Concise, innovative, accessible and provocative, original, bold and ambitious – an important and timely book that is a pleasure to read."

EAMONN CARRABINE, UNIVERSITY OF ESSEX

In this pioneering work, Bill McClanahan provides a concise and lively overview of visual criminology. With examples of the most prominent methods at work in visual criminology, this book explores the visual perspective in relation to prisons, police, the environment and drugs, while noting the complex ethical implications embedded in visual research.

Practical Psychology for Policing

Jason Roach, University of Huddersfield

“Combines an appreciation of policing skills based on front-line experience with a demonstration of how such skills can be enhanced by up-to-date research in psychology.”

KEN PEASE, UNIVERSITY COLLEGE LONDON

This textbook investigates how psychological research can be applied to practical policing. It explores new ways psychological knowledge can be used in broad areas of policing and uniquely demonstrates its use in specific aspects of practical policing. Encouraging critical reflection, this book is essential reading for practitioners and students.

Border Harms and Everyday Violence

A Prison Island in Europe

Evgenia Iliadou, immigration project worker

The Greek island of Lesbos is frequently the subject of news reports on the refugee 'crisis', but they only occasionally focus on the dire living conditions of asylum seekers already present on the island.

Through direct experience as an activist in Lesbos refugee camps and detention centres, Iliadou gives voice to those with lived experiences of state violence. The author considers the escalation of EU border regime and deterrence policies seen in the past decade alongside their present impacts. Asking why the social harm and suffering border crossers experience is normalised and rendered invisible, the book highlights the collective, global responsibility for safeguarding refugees' human rights.

Food and Society

Series Editors: Michael K. Goodman, University of Reading and David Goodman, University of California, Santa Cruz

Transforming Agriculture and Foodways

The Digital-Molecular Convergence

David Goodman, University of California, Santa Cruz

A wave of innovation driven by the convergence of digital and molecular technologies is transforming food production and ways of eating in the US, Western Europe and Australasia. This book explores a range of contemporary agri-food issues, such as the digitalisation of farm production, aka Precision Agriculture, farmer independence, gene editing, alternative proteins and the rise of app-based home food deliveries.

This is the first book to provide a systemic analysis of technological innovation and its socioeconomic consequences in modern food systems, including the 'hollowing out' of rural communities and pronounced industrial concentration. The food system is under growing public pressure to respond to global climate change but this book finds little evidence of transition to sustainable low-carbon trajectories.
