Welcome

Welcome to the Autumn/Winter 2024 catalogue from Bristol University Press and Policy Press, winner of the Independent Academic and Professional Publisher of the Year 2024.

Our titles promote social justice and in the biggest year of global elections in history, speak to the issues making the headlines.

This season our outstanding range of new titles includes Peak Injustice: Solving Britain's Inequality Crisis by Danny Dorling (page 7), which considers the ways a new UK government can look to the future.

We also have a fascinating book from Mary O'Hara, Austerity Bites 10 Years On, assessing the damage done by over a decade of austerity measures, and how we can avoid repeating the same mistakes (page 8).

Leigh Turner, former British ambassador to Ukraine and Austria, gives an insider account of the intricacies of modern statecraft in Lessons in Diplomacy: Politics, Power and Parties (p9).

We also have two new titles in our What Is It For? series: What Are Zoos For? and What Is Counterterrorism For? (page 5).

We are also proud to announce our new transdisciplinary journal Gender and Justice (page 4), whose first issue will publish in the spring of 2025.

Read on for news of our new textbooks, research monographs and new titles out in paperback. We hope you enjoy browsing through the following pages.

Gender and Justice

Volume 1 | 2025 | 2 issues

Editors: Anna Carline, University of Liverpool, UK,
Sharron FitzGerald, Cresppa-GTM, Paris, France and
Lesley McMillan, Glasgow Caledonian University, UK

Consulting Editor: Maggie O'Neill, University College Cork, Ireland

“With so many people around the world experiencing systematic injustices, a journal dedicated to gender and justice is both timely and necessary. Showcasing innovative, experimental and challenging feminist work and led by an editorial board and team of experienced, cross-disciplinary and motivated scholars, this journal will help to shift thinking and lead to change.”

CLARE MCGLYNN KC (HON), DURHAM UNIVERSITY, UK

Gender and Justice is an international and transdisciplinary journal dedicated to advancing critical feminist scholarship on justice in the social sciences, and from different methodological perspectives.

The journal aims to showcase innovative contributions that are theoretically driven and/or empirically grounded approaches to various forms of gender inequality, injustice and exclusion which influence and shape individuals' lives across diverse and global contexts. The editors' conception of justice is comprehensive. It encompasses economic, social, criminal, distributive, environmental, cultural and political dimensions.

The first issue will publish in Spring 2025.

What Are Zoos For?

Heather Browning, University of Southampton and Walter Veit, University of Reading

"An informed and honest account of the activities of modern zoos, offering a future in which zoo animals thrive."

KATHERINE CRONIN, LINCOLN PARK ZOO, CHICAGO, IL

Are zoos an anachronism in the 21st century when we can watch animals from our couches in close-up in their natural habitat without worrying about cruelty? Should they go the way of other bygone era 'spectacles' and 'attractions' that we now regard as barbaric?

In What are Zoos For? Browning and Veit test the common justifications for zoos (entertainment, education, research, conservation) against the evidence, and suggest what the best zoos of the future should look like to ensure that they are primarily for animals and not just for people.

What Is It For?

What Is Counterterrorism For?

Leonie Jackson, Northumbria University

"A well-researched critique of today's 'hybrid counterterrorism' and an evidence-based call for a non-violent approach that privileges human security and democratic norms."

RONALD CRELINSTEN, UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA

Since 9/11, there has been a huge ramping up of the state's special powers in the name of security, such as indefinite detention, the assassination of suspected terrorists, the use of extraordinary rendition, torture, and changes to due process. However, these powers are often shadowy, they are rarely rolled back, and they can be counterproductive.

This book focuses on understanding the costs of counterterrorism and asks how they can be reduced. Global in scope, it looks not just at Western liberal democracies, but at numerous examples from across the world.

The Kindness Fix

How and Why We Must Build a More Compassionate Society

Jason Wood, University of Nottingham Malaysia

"From the lens of history, a tour de force of the power of compassion to not only change the lives of individuals but to improve the lives of everyone. A must-read for anyone interested in making the world a better place."

JAMES R. DOTY, STANFORD UNIVERSITY CENTER FOR COMPASSION AND ALTRUISM RESEARCH AND EDUCATION AND AUTHOR OF INTO THE MAGIC SHOP

"A compelling argument for compassion in public policy. Wood explains how everyone would benefit if we, and our elected leaders, had the courage to be kind."

SIOBHAN BENITA, ACTIVIST AND KINDNESS ADVOCATE

"Jason Wood makes the case for giving a damn – clearly, compassionately and cleverly. Just as 104 years ago Tawney wrote of those lacking sufficient compassion: '...they repeat, like parrots, the word "Productivity", because that is the word that rises first in their minds; ... When they are touched by social compunction, they can think of nothing more original than the diminution of poverty, because poverty, being the opposite of the riches which they value most, seems to them the most terrible of human afflictions.' Wood talks of 'the absence of a compelling political vision' to do better, to be kind, even though, as Corbyn (the politician most closely associated with kindness worldwide) put it so simply, there is creativity, kindness and laughter in all of us."

DANNY DORLING, UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

"As selfish materialism's failure becomes increasingly clear, this book explores better directions to take, making a strong case for public policy based on values of compassion and social justice."

PETER BERESFORD OBE, UNIVERSITY OF EAST ANGLIA AND SHAPING OUR LIVES

If a measure of our humanity is how we treat the most vulnerable, our report card is bleak. Our politics is divided, people in need are too often treated with cruelty, and the systems we built to support others are creaking. Welfare too often fails, sometimes with tragic consequences.

Yet, the help we give to others can be more effective, more accepted, and more just if we cultivate greater levels of compassion to put it at the heart of public life and potentially resolve these challenges. In this book, Jason Wood reviews the research and talks to experts from across the world to make the moving case for greater compassion in public life.

Peak Injustice

Solving Britain's Inequality Crisis

Danny Dorling, University of Oxford

"I hope we've not reached Peak Dorling – we need Danny's wisdom and knowledge to help us root out injustice and work towards a better world."

KATE E. PICKETT, UNIVERSITY OF YORK

"In this book, a world-class scholar of inequality convincingly makes the case that, despite everything, and not just perfunctorily, it's worth having hope."

MARCOS GONZÁLEZ HERNANDO, UCL SOCIAL RESEARCH INSTITUTE AND UNIVERSIDAD DIEGO PORTALES

"Danny Dorling charts the contours of our society with a self-evident passion and creativity that not only explain its grotesque inequalities but inspire us to understand how we can radically change it."

RT HON JOHN MCDONNELL, MP FOR HAYES AND HARLINGTON

By 2024 a majority of parents in the UK with three or more children were going hungry to feed their families. Children in the UK are becoming shorter and childhood mortality has been rising. What part does living with high inequality play in understanding how we have got to the point of peak injustice, when surely the situation cannot become worse? Although 2018 was a year of peak income and wealth inequality in the UK, absolute deprivation has continued to grow since then, especially since the pandemic.

Peak Injustice follows up the bestselling Peak Inequality (2018), offering a carefully curated selection of Danny Dorling's latest writing with brand-new content looking to the future, including challenges for a new government in 2024/25, the impact of Jeremy Corbyn's legacy, and the implications of Keir Starmer's many blind spots. An essential addition to readers' existing Dorling collections.

Austerity Bites 10 Years On

A Journey to the Sharp End of Cuts in the UK

Mary O'Hara, freelance journalist

"For most of our media, entrenched poverty is a second- or third-order issue; for Mary O'Hara it is the most urgent story of our time and our nation and she tells it brilliantly."

MELISSA BENN, WRITER, TEACHER, CAMPAIGNER

"Commanding, crucial reportage that reveals the devastating human cost of pernicious government policy – a rallying cry to prevent further harm."

SABA SALMAN, SOCIAL AFFAIRS JOURNALIST AND AUTHOR

"O'Hara brings her journalist skills and burning anger to bear on 'the staggering damage' done by austerity – a political choice."

PROFESSOR THE BARONESS (RUTH) LISTER OF BURTERSETT

"Mary O'Hara shows us how Osborne's austerity policies broke Britain and the most telling growth numbers today are the number of billionaires and food bank users. That is the true legacy of austerity."

MARK BLYTH, BROWN UNIVERSITY

Austerity has proved to be more deadly than the COVID-19 pandemic. In fact, over the last decade, the damage caused by austerity measures in the UK has had a long-lasting and profound effect on many lives. The first edition of Austerity Bites offered on-the-ground reportage of one of the most significantly regressive economic strategies of any post-war government. Over a year Mary O'Hara toured the UK to gauge the immediate impact – and expectations of people affected – and found many clinging to the hope that austerity cuts would not last long as the damage became increasingly apparent.

Alas, this was not how things unfolded. Instead, much of the Welfare State had its vital support systems systematically undermined. The public sector, including the NHS, is now on its knees. Schools are buckling under multiple structural and budgetary pressures. Councils – even big ones – are going broke. Homelessness is rampant. Austerity has killed. While Brexit, the pandemic and war have no doubt impacted the economic health of the country, previous austerity cuts left the UK less prepared to weather such extraordinary events.

With new commentary, Austerity Bites 10 Years On assesses the true scale of the damage these policies have inflicted on the country's most vulnerable groups, public institutions and wider society. It reflects on where we have been, where we are now and what needs to happen next to undo the damage and avoid the same mistakes again.

Lessons in Diplomacy

Politics, Power and Parties

Leigh Turner, former British ambassador to Ukraine and Austria

"Fascinating insights from a well-informed source. Informative, thought-provoking and fun."

ALEXANDER VAN DER BELLEN, FEDERAL PRESIDENT OF AUSTRIA

"Amusing anecdotes from diplomatic life are always a good read, but Leigh Turner adds depth, intelligence and serious commentary. This is an insightful as well as a most readable account."

MATTHEW PARRIS, WRITER AND BROADCASTER

"Leigh Turner examines the nature of true diplomacy from a global perspective, and emphasises how important it is, especially today. And he describes how hope and hard work are essential if we are to keep going during these dark times. An insightful and powerful book."

JANE GOODALL, DBE, FOUNDER, JANE GOODALL INSTITUTE & UN MESSENGER OF PEACE

"It's rare that the worlds of diplomacy and rock'n'roll bump into each other but when they do, it's reassuring to know how much we are alike. Leigh Turner rocks!"

ROGER GLOVER, DEEP PURPLE

Is a diplomat's life really as glamorous as a royal visit, or as dramatic as a coup d'état in Turkey?

Leigh Turner is a former British ambassador who led posts in Ukraine, Turkey and Austria. In this witty globe-trotting adventure through one of the most intriguing careers a person can have, Leigh relates his interactions with royalty of both the aristocratic and celebrity kinds, and with brilliant and extraordinary people who bestowed valuable lessons. Offering astute reflections on Brexit, Russia's war with Ukraine and the chaos of modern politics, he sheds new light on the intricacies of modern statecraft, including what we all can learn from a good diplomat or ambassador.

In this entertaining and accessible first-hand account, you'll discover how diplomats really work with spies, how immunity allows killers to escape justice, how Russia broke up the Soviet Union and then nursed its resentment at the consequences -- and how to throw, and be invited to, a great cocktail party.

Stinking Rich

The Four Myths of the Good Billionaire

Carl Rhodes, University of Technology Sydney

Billionaires are an ultra-elite social class whose numbers are growing alongside their obscene wealth while others struggle, suffer or even die.

They represent a scourge of economic inequality, but how do they get away with it? A set of dangerous and deceptive interconnected myths portrays them as a 'force for good'.

Each of these myths enables billionaire wealth and power to set us back to old-style feudalism and plutocracy.

Offering a trenchant critique, this incisive book testifies to the growing international political will to take concrete actions in supporting economic justice and democratic equality.

Ricardo's Dream

How Economists Forgot the Real World and Led Us Astray

Nat Dyer, Schumacher Institute and Promoting Economic Pluralism

"This important and lucid book skewers – in delightful detail – the false gods of the profession that has wreaked so much modern havoc, around the globe."

NICHOLAS SHAXSON, AUTHOR OF TREASURE ISLANDS

Ricardo's Dream tells the fascinating story of David Ricardo, Adam Smith's only real rival as the 'founder of economics'. The wealthiest stock trader of his day, Ricardo introduced the study of abstract models to economics. He also developed the theory of trade that underpinned globalisation and hides, behind its mathematical façade, a history of power, empire and slavery.

Brimming with fresh ideas and stories, Ricardo's Dream shows how too many economists, from Ricardo's day to our own, have turned away from observing the real world and led us astray.

Healthy Societies

Policy, Practice and Obstacles

Graham Scambler, University College London

Can society be healthy, and how? Is Britain a 'healthy society' in the 21st century?

When people ponder health, they usually consider the health of the individual, but individuals coexist in a social environment so attention should be placed on the health of communities and populations.

Re-examining health, healthcare and societal health using the latest data and research, this book addresses definitions of health, changes in health over time and the contribution of healthcare. It also suggests ways of effectively tackling obstacles to improving health and healthcare in 21st century Britain.

Menstrual Myth Busting

The Case of the Hormonal Female

Sally King, King's College London

In this book, Sally King interrogates the diagnostic label of premenstrual syndrome (PMS) to expose and challenge sexist assumptions within medical research and practice. She powerfully demonstrates how the concept of the 'hormonal' premenstrual woman is merely the latest iteration of the 'hysterical' female myth. By blaming the healthy reproductive body (first our wombs, now our hormones) for the female prevalence of emotional distress and physical pain, gender myths appear to have trumped all empirical evidence to the contrary.

The book also provides a primer on menstrual physiology beyond hormones, and a short history of how hormonal metaphors came to dominate medical and popular discourses. The author calls for clinicians, researchers, educators and activists to help improve women's health without unintentionally reproducing damaging stereotypes.

Social Murder?

Austerity and Life Expectancy in the UK

David Walsh and Gerry McCartney,
University of Glasgow

Life expectancy is about more than just health – it's about the kind of society we live in.

Combining robust evidence with real-life stories, this book reveals the shocking impact of austerity policies on life expectancy and offers an optimistic vision of what can be done to restore life expectancy improvements and reduce health inequality.

Why the European Union Failed in Afghanistan

Transatlantic Relations and the Return of the Taliban

Oz Hassan, University of Warwick

The return of the Taliban has undermined EU external action, reversed 20 years of state-building efforts and represents the most significant failure of EU foreign policy to date. This book argues that the EU's state-building efforts in Afghanistan were deeply flawed, failing to account for the growing insecurity within Afghanistan and changes within US strategy.

Embodying Irish Abortion Reform

Bodies, Emotions, and Feminist Activism

Aideen O'Shaughnessy, University of Lincoln

Drawing on qualitative research and in-depth interviews, this book explores the experiences of reproductive rights activists living under, and mobilising against, Ireland's constitutional abortion ban. The author exposes the subtle influence of the Eighth Amendment on Irish women and their (reproductive) bodies, whether or not they attempted to access a clandestine abortion.

Interpreting Contentious Memory

Countermemories and Social Conflicts over the Past

Edited by Thomas DeGloma, Hunter College and City University of New York and Janet Jacobs, University of Colorado

"This book represents the state of the art in sociological memory studies. It will help sociologists understand why memory is so important, just as it will help non-sociological memory scholars understand what sociology has to offer the field."

JEFFREY OLICK, UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

Memory is at the center of a diverse array of political conflicts, moral disputes and power dynamics.

This book illustrates how scholars use different interpretive lenses to study profound conflicts rooted in the past. Addressing issues of racism, genocide, war, nationalism, colonialism and more, it highlights how our interpretations of contentious memories are indispensable to our understandings of contemporary conflicts and identities.

Edited by Debbie Bargallie and Nilmini Fernando, Griffith University

"This powerhouse collection is a must-read."

JACKIE HUGGINS, HISTORIAN AND AUTHOR

This collection offers a unique exploration of critical racial literacy and anti-racist praxis in Australia's educational landscape. Combining critical race and Indigenous theories and perspectives, contributors articulate a decolonial liberatory imperative for our times. In an age when 'decolonization' has become a buzzword, the book demystifies 'critical anti-racism praxis', advocating for critical and multidisciplinary approaches.

Educators from a range of disciplines including Law, Indigenous Studies, Health, Sociology, Policy and the Arts share compelling stories of educating on race, racism and anti-racism, offering actionable ideas for the classroom and beyond.

Rethinking Work, Ageing and Retirement

Series Editors: David Lain, Newcastle University, Sarah Vickerstaff, University of Kent and Mariska van der Horst, Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam

Rethinking Financial Behaviour

Rationality and Resistance in the Financialization of Everyday Life

Ariane Agunsoye, Goldsmiths, University of London

Pension policy in the UK and US is designed on the assumption that people can make informed financial decisions, can consistently invest in pensions and manage diverse portfolios. Deviating from this is often deemed irresponsible and irrational. However, this assumption overlooks uncontrollable factors like caring duties, employment breaks or income limitations. Even when individuals act as expected, unpredictable market shifts can hinder long-term planning.

This book redefines deviations to 'rational behaviour' as logical responses to a dysfunctional system. Challenging existing theoretical discussions and policy approaches, it proposes a fresh perspective on rationality when it comes to financial policy and practices.

The Complexities of Human Trafficking and Exploitation

The Circles of Analysis

Craig Barlow, HCPC-registered independent forensic social worker and criminologist

Identifying victims and perpetrators of trafficking and modern slavery has become increasingly challenging as traffickers have become more sophisticated in their recruitment and control of victims and seizure of new opportunities. Written by an experienced practitioner and academic, this book presents the 'Circles of Analysis', a unique model to assist professionals and researchers working in the criminal justice, safeguarding and social work sectors.

Focusing on factors around the victim, offender and environment, this innovative model equips professionals to consider prevention, protection, intervention and disruption activity rather than limiting action to criminal justice-related outcomes.

Based on work developed during the implementation of the cross-European INDEED project, this is an essential reference book for practitioners, researchers and policy makers. It sets out the three pillars of best evidence-based practice – scientific evidence, professional judgement and consideration of clients' preferences, values and beliefs. Demonstrating both successful and unsuccessful approaches with case studies from the field, the book offers practical strategies for prevention teams designing and evaluating their programmes.

Social Harm and Neoliberalism

Political and Philosophical Issues

John Gregson, Leeds Beckett University

This book links criminological, political, moral and philosophical issues to offer a deeper understanding of the problem of social harm within the neoliberal environment.

Illustrated through case studies, John Gregson shows that social harms are a problem created not only by politics or economics, states or corporations, but also by the individualism that neoliberal societies encourage. He argues that key factors that deepen the problem of social harm include the neoliberal production of ignorance and subjectivity, along with liberal modernity itself.

Reimagining the International

Chinese World Ordering before the West

Yongjin Zhang, University of Bristol

A rich and enlightening study of Chinese international relations, this book shows how engaging China's history can contribute to our search for global foundations of international thought. It examines international thought in ancient China, Chinese international relations in deep world history, and the evolution of contemporary Chinese academic IR as intellectual history.

Offering a distinctive English School perspective, this volume is a call to put studies of Chinese international relations in their proper historical context, arguing that such an approach leads to a better understanding of Chinese ideas and statecraft and contributes to a fruitful pursuit of IR knowledge production in the construction of global IR.

Foreign policy analysis is a major part of International Relations scholarship, yet many models are ill-equipped to examine the effects of individual leadership on policy. This innovative account challenges traditional views in International Relations by examining how and why leaders shape policy, showcasing Obama's Cuba pivot as a prime example.

This book demonstrates the significance of comparison in world politics, revealing how comparative knowledge is produced and how its practices shape security politics.

By introducing the sustaining peace scale as a continuous measure for peacebuilding success, this book explores how to establish peace in societies recovering from large-scale, armed conflicts. Drawing on an extensive data collection, the author analyses the impact of four peacebuilding practices – international commitment, power-sharing, security sector reform and transitional justice.

The often contradictory narratives surrounding EU–China relations can play a crucial role in shaping decisions. This book warns of their influence on policy making.

Roads Not Yet Travelled

Transport Futures Beyond 2050

Marcus Enoch, Loughborough University

What will the world be like in 2050? This book explores possible future worlds through eight hard science fiction stories. Taking in automation, big data, climate catastrophe and government dysfunction, each tale looks at the world through the eyes of people whose lives have been influenced by the societies they live in and the transport systems they live with.

Asking important questions about our values and role of transport in society, this book will encourage planners, policy makers, researchers and anyone interested in a positive future for public mobility to take the steps to ensure we get there.

Taking Risks and Breaking New Frontiers in Policy and Politics

Edited by Oscar Berglund, University of Bristol, Claire Dunlop, University of Exeter and Christopher M. Weible, University of Colorado Denver

First published as a special issue of the Policy & Politics journal, this book makes a statement about the study of policy and politics: what it is, how it is done, where it has been and where it is going. It asks how we conceive of policy and political studies, who our audiences are and whose knowledge matters. It comprises scholarship that has rarely been combined to explore several fundamental challenges about research in policy and politics.

We live in a state of 'wealtherty', characterised by the hyperconcentration of wealth and a stark distinction between the rich and the poor. In pursuit of social and economic justice, this book argues that we need to stop talking about poverty and start addressing the social and political problems caused by wealth.

The Short Guide to Mental Health

Deirdre Heenan and Jennifer Betts, Ulster University

"A useful introduction to contemporary themes in mental health covering a range of perspectives."

MATT PROOM, UNIVERSITY OF THE WEST OF ENGLAND

This clear and concise guide lays out key concepts and debates in the increasingly prioritised and discussed topic of mental health.

With overviews of recent developments and stakeholder perspectives, the book introduces contemporary themes in policy and practice. It explores the prevalence, cost and social determinants of mental illness, the changing attitudes and stigma around them, and the roles of the state, voluntary and community sectors in designing and delivering services.

Accessible to all, and complete with case studies, chapter summaries and further reading guides, this textbook makes a perfect introduction to the subject. It explores not only the main theories of mental health but also why measuring the prevalence of mental health problems poses such a challenge.

Children as Change-Makers

Unleashing Children's Real Philanthropic Power

Alison Body, University of Kent

"This much-needed and very timely book is academically astute, practically informed, and – crucially – conveys brilliantly the author's absolute passion and commitment to recognising children's interests and power as philanthropic citizens."

ANDREW PETERSON, UNIVERSITY OF BIRMINGHAM

How can we help children grow into kind and compassionate adults? It is commonplace for civil society organisations, communities, schools and parents to encourage charitable giving and philanthropic activity in children, but this book shows how critical engagement can help children explore why these behaviours are desirable.

Philanthropic citizenship learning moves beyond ideas of charity as surface-level giving, instead embracing a richer understanding of charity which includes a 'social justice mentality', where children are encouraged to critically explore and engage with the wider issues which sit behind charity.

Written with children's development at its heart, this book is the first to explore global examples of philanthropic citizenship education with younger children. Alison Body advocates for young children as active and knowledgeable social actors, capable of building a kinder and more socially just society as they grow up.

Reframing Education Failure and Aspiration

The Rise of the Meritocracy

Shaun Best, University of Winchester

Education is seen as central to social mobility and equality and, following a drive to raise learners' aspirations, an 'aspiration industry' has emerged.

However, the desire to leave school early should not be regarded as evidence of students lacking ambition. This book traces the emergence of the aspiration industry and argues that to have ambitions that do not require qualifications is different, but not wrong.

Reviewing the performance of six schools in England, their Ofsted reports and responses, it evaluates underpinning assumptions of what makes an effective school. This book critically examines neoliberal education policy developments, including the 1988 Education Reform Act, and the political discourse around changing explanations of education 'failure' with the rise in the marketisation of education.

This will make essential reading for academics and researchers working in the fields of teacher education, education studies, the sociology of education and the politics of education.

Decolonising Community Education and Development

Understanding the Past, Learning for the Future

Marjorie Mayo, Goldsmiths, University of London

It is vital that we decolonise community education and development – learning from the past in order to challenge current discrimination and oppression more effectively. In this book, Marjorie Mayo identifies ways of developing more inclusive policies and practices, working towards social justice for the future. She also tackles the pervasive influence of the ‘culture wars’ undermining work in communities, including the denial of problematic colonial legacies.

Inspired by movements such as Black Lives Matter and labour solidarity, the book includes case studies from the US, UK and the Global South, outlining the lessons that can be applied to community education and development training and practice.
